MODELS OF FAITH

St. Kateri Tekakwitha

Tribal information says Saint Kateri Tekakwitha was the daughter of a Mohawk chief and an Algonquin mother. At age four, she lost her parents and brothers to a smallpox epidemic. Her mother was a Christian and Kateri Tekakwitha wanted to be a Christian too. The smallpox left Kateri Tekakwitha almost blind and very frail. A friend, Anastasia, taught her about God, and she prayed that the "Blackrobes" would come and baptize her.

At thirteen, Kateri Tekakwitha made a vow to God that she would never marry. She was finally baptized when she was nineteen. Kateri Tekakwitha's life was difficult. She experienced cruelty by her tribe for her beliefs, and because of this, she was not permitted to practice her faith openly. She was given very difficult work to do for the tribe, but never complained and did what was needed.

In 1677, Kateri Tekakwitha's friends arranged an escape for her to Canada where she completed her studies of the faith and received her first communion. She was now in a place where she was loved and wanted, and where she could serve God in peace. Kateri Tekakwitha did strenuous penance for the sins of her tribe and, in doing so, she weakened herself. She died when only twenty-four years old. She is a great role model for young girls. Many miracles are attributed to Kateri Tekakwitha's intercession.

First Native American Saint

After Kateri Tekakwitha died, suddenly the ugly pock marks she had almost all her life were wiped away from her young face. We believe, as those at her bedside did a long ago, that God was showing us all how very special this young Native American woman was to him and to our world. Now Kateri Tekakwitha is our first Native American saint. Saint Kateri Tekakwitha served her tribe with hard work and later with penance and prayer. Saint Kateri Tekakwitha had a great devotion to the cross and Jesus crucified, and while walking in the woods, would often lash sticks together to form a cross for prayer.

"Catherine Tekakwitha, so renowned today in new France for the extraordinary marvels that God has bestowed and continues to bestow through her intercession, was born an Iroquois in 1656 in a Mohawk village called Gahnaougé" - Fr. Pierre Cholenec, SJ, Kateri Tekakwitha's spiritual advisor.
